2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Item#	Rationale
1	Option B is correct	In 1844 Samuel Morse proved that the telegraph could be used to send messages between cities. Telegraph lines laid across the country and telegraph cables laid across the ocean enabled people to communicate across long distances. For this item the student applies critical-thinking skills to find the main idea and identify cause-and-effect relationships.
	Option A is incorrect	The telegraph allowed people across the country to share information, which decreased rather than increased regional differences among various groups of people.
	Option C is incorrect	The telegraph did not allow people to sign legal documents from across the country.
	Option D is incorrect	The telegraph was not the government's only method to negotiate with foreign leaders.

2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Item#	Rationale
2	Option G is correct	Different types of climate and soil led to the development of different economies in the British colonies. A warm, humid climate and fertile soil led the southern colonies to develop an economy based on plantation agriculture. A cold climate and rocky soil made farming difficult and influenced the New England colonies to develop an economy based on fishing and trade. For this item the student applies critical-thinking skills to organize and interpret information from a table.
	Option F is incorrect	Different types of climates and soil led primarily to the development of different economies in the British colonies, not to the founding of trade and vocational schools in some colonies.
	Option H is incorrect	Different types of climates and soil led primarily to the development of different economies in the British colonies, not to the establishment of import taxes in some colonies.
	Option J is incorrect	Different types of climates and soil led primarily to the development of different economies in the British colonies, not to the pattern of religious differences in the two regions.

2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Item#	Rationale
3	Option C is correct	The Fifteenth Amendment granted African American men the right to vote. However, southern states used tactics such as literacy tests and poll taxes to prevent African American men from voting.

	Option F is incorrect	The issues of slavery, sectionalism, and states' rights led to the Civil War, not the American Revolution.
	Option G is incorrect	Popular sovereignty was not a result of sectionalism, states' rights, and slavery.
	Option H is incorrect	Manifest Destiny was not a result of sectionalism, states' rights, and slavery.

2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Item#	Rationale
5	Option D is correct	The Declaration of Rights and Sentiments demanded the right to vote for women. This claim was very controversial and would not be achieved nationally until the Nineteenth Amendment was ratified in 1920. For this item the student applies critical-thinking skills to draw inferences and conclusions.
	Option A is incorrect	Although the Declaration of Rights and Sentiments noted that those job opportunities that were available to women did not pay a lot of money, the issue of paying women the same amount as men for the same type of work was not raised.
	Option B is incorrect	The Declaration of Rights and Sentiments noted that some women did not have full property rights, but this was not a controversial claim. Women were already gaining property rights in the 1840s and would continue to gain property rights in the years ahead.

2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Anti-Federalists argued against ratification because the proposed constitution lacked a bill of rights. For this item the student applies critical-thinking skills to organize and interpret information from charts.
	Option F is incorrect	The proposed constitution strengthened national, not state, authority. The central bank would not become a political issue until after the constitution was ratified.
	Option G is incorrect	The proposed constitution gave the president the power to negotiate treaties and the Senate the power to approve or reject treaties. It did not prevent becoming involved with the issues of foreign countries. The proposed constitution expanded rather than restricted the power of the legislative branch.

	Option F is incorrect	Congress did not pass strict federal labor laws until the early 1900s.
	Option G is incorrect	This letter was written in 1847 to try to recruit girls to work in factories. The abolition of the slave trade was not related to girls working in textile factories.
	Option H is incorrect	The cottage industry system refers to people making goods in their homes. The economic growth described in this letter was due to production moving into factories. This caused the cottage industry system to decline, not expand.

2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Item#	Rationale
16	Option F is correct	The excerpt supports the inference that Know-Nothing Party members blamed Irish immigrants for taking away jobs from American citizens. The Know-Nothing Party was a political party during the late 1840s and early 1850s. ## 2019 STAAR Grade 8 Social Studies Rationales

Item#	Rationale

One reason for its founding was to create a defensive barrier between South Carolina and the Spanish in Florida. For this item the student applies critical-thinking skills to find the main idea and draw conclusions.
	Option F is incorrect	Quakers were not a threat to the southern frontier of the British colonies. There were a number of Quakers living in the British colonies, but many Quakers lived in the colony of Pennsylvania, not along the southern frontier. The court instead ruled that the federal government was responsible for relations between the United States and the Cherokee Nation.

Item#	Rationale
20	Option G is correct	Senator Charles Sumner made these remarks in 1870 when Hiram Rhodes Revels, an African-American legislator from Mississippi, was sworn in as a U.S. Senator. Revels was the first African American to be elected to the U.S. Congress. In Sumner's opinion this was a "great act." He justified this statement by quoting the Declaration of Independence that "All men are created equal." Sumner was a Radical Republican who supported equal rights for African Americans during the Reconstruction Era. For this item the student applies critical-thinking skills to draw a conclusion.
	Option F is incorrect	As a Radical Republican, Sumner would not have considered the readmission of the last Confederate state to the Union a "great act." Radical Republicans passed laws that required former Confederate states to ratify the Fourteenth Amendment, adopt state constitutions disqualifying former Confederate officials from holding public office, and guarantee African American men the right to vote. Federal troops were sent into the South to enforce these and other Reconstruction laws.
	Option H is incorrect	As a Radical Republican, Sumner would not have considered the Senate's acquittal of President Andrew Johnson a "great act." One reason Radical Republicans impeached Andrew Johnson was for blocking their Reconstruction plans to extend civil rights to former slaves. Sumner fundamentally disagreed with the president's Reconstruction plan and voted "guilty" in the impeachment trial.
	Option J is incorrect	The "great act" that Sumner was referring to was the election of the first African American to Congress in 1870. He was not referring to the election of the first woman to the U.S. Senate, which took place in 1932.

	Option F is incorrect	Indentured servitude was a labor practice that was common in the colonial period. Men and women agreed to work for a certain number of years in exchange for transportation to the colonies, as well as food, clothing, and shelter once they arrived.
