PASSAGE 1

Read the following passage about a science project. Then answer questions 1 through 5.

Family Science

by Nancy Viau

“Eeeww! Karly, get that slimy, disgusting piece of junk away from my doll!” Jessie hollered.

“It’s not slimy. It’s SHINY,” I said. “Look!” I pushed my rock under Jessie’s nose. “Rocks aren’t disgusting, especially this one. It’s called obsidian, and it’s from a volcano. Dad and I bought it at the Natural Science Museum.”

Jessie shoved my rock. “Who cares? Karly, you are clueless. Girls don’t play with that stuff.”

“I like rocks.” I let out a puffy sigh and put the rock in my pocket. “I may be a famous geologist one day. What will you be?”

“Leave me alone,” Jessie snapped.

I didn’t feel like arguing, so I stomped out the door, plopped on the ground, and dug a hole. “Karly,” Mom called from the potting shed. “Do you have to play in the dirt? Look at your clothes. They’re filthy.”

“Maybe I’ll be an archaeologist when I grow up,” I shouted. “They get paid to look for artifacts in the ground.” I dusted off my pants and marched to the porch. “Good dinosaur book?” I asked Dad, peering over his shoulder.

“Excellent, want me to read to you?” he asked.

“Not now. Sometime soon I want to get started on the book I got at the museum—the one that came with an awesome fish fossil and . . .”

Jessie interrupted and asked me, “What in the world would you do with a fossil?”

“I’d study a bunch of fossils and become a paleontologist. I might even discover a new dinosaur,” I replied.

My sister shook her head so hard I thought her braids would fly off. “Dad, we can’t possibly be twins,” she said. “Karly’s weird.”

Dad gave Jessie his don’t-mess-with-me look. “Not that again.”

Jessie took the hint. “I’m leaving. I have to find a shoebox and make a caveman diorama for school.”

“Wait!” I fished around in my pocket. “I found a chunk of granite earlier today. Do you want to use it?” I asked.

“Eeeww! You’ve got to be kidding.” Jessie grabbed my rock and threw it down the driveway. “I certainly don’t need that!”

I watched my sister disappear into the house, then wiped away an annoying tear. A scientist doesn’t cry, but I sure wished Jessie would see things my way sometimes. After lunch, I heard sobs coming from Jessie’s room. I was still upset, but I peeked around the door. Jessie was sitting on the floor in a heap of construction paper. “What’s wrong?” I asked.

Jessie sniffled. “I can’t think of any materials for this dumb diorama. Colored paper doesn’t look prehistoric.”

Jessie was right. An idea sizzled in my brain. I grabbed her hand and pulled her outside. I didn’t stop until we were next to Mom’s potting shed.

“What are we doing here?” Jessie whined. “I have a project to do.”

“Dig, just dig,” I said, “and no questions.”

My sister tickled the dirt with her fingertips. “Eeeww!”

“Dig deeper,” I said. Jessie scrunched up her face, closed her eyes, and clawed at the earth. She felt something. “What is it?” I asked.

Jessie picked up a piece of hardened red clay. “What good is broken pottery?”

“It could be part of your caveman diorama, Jessie. It looks like a tiny primitive bowl, don’t you think?”

“Well . . . I guess,” said Jessie as she grinned and looked at the ground. “Maybe there’s a cup in here too.” My sister pushed and pulled at the dirt. I couldn’t believe she was giggling! Jessie worked for an hour on her diorama. She arranged the pottery bits around a fireplace that was made from crisscrossed twigs. Then Jessie sifted through layers of earth to find the right size stones for benches. “Now I need a cave,” she said. Racing down the driveway and skipping back, she opened her hand. “How about this? You said I could have it.”

I took the chunk of granite from my sister’s palm and gently placed it in the shoebox. “A granite cave,” I replied, “it’s perfect. And I have just the thing that looks like a cave drawing.” I ran into the house and brought out my fish fossil.

“Try this,” I said.

“Your museum fossil?” Jessie asked.

“You can borrow it. I will need it back, though, if I become a paleontologist and not a geologist or an archaeologist.”

“My diorama still needs something. I know! I have a miniature boy doll I can dress up like a caveman!” Jessie exclaimed.

“A doll?” I rolled my eyes. “Eeeww!”

“Ok, I’ll do this part myself. Thanks for helping me. I won’t call you weird anymore. I’d be lost without you for my sister,” Jessie said as she gave me a hug.

I hugged her back and whispered, “Sister scientists save the day.”

Multiple-Choice Questions

1. Read the sentence from the passage.

My sister tickled the dirt with her fingertips.

What does “tickled the dirt” mean in the sentence?

- Ⓐ lightly touched the dirt
- Ⓑ drew a picture in the dirt
- Ⓒ patted the dirt back into place
- Ⓓ dug in the dirt looking for things

Item Information
Alignment	A-V.4.1.2
Answer Key	A
Depth of Knowledge	2
p-value A	62% (correct answer)
p-value B	6%
p-value C	7%
p-value D	25%
Option Annotations	The student is asked to determine the meaning of a phrase from the passage. Option A is the correct answer since the phrase “tickled the dirt” means to touch the dirt lightly. The literal meaning of the word “tickled” provides context for the correct answer. The development of the idea that Jessie does not like to get dirty and her reaction to touching the dirt provide additional context for the correct answer. Options B, C, and D do not convey the meaning of the word “tickled.”

2. Which sentence best tells what the sisters learn in the passage?

- Ⓐ Twin sisters see how they are alike.
- Ⓑ Twin sisters respect one another's differences.
- Ⓒ Twin sisters work together to make a diorama.
- Ⓓ Twin sisters talk about what they will be when they grow up.

Item Information
Alignment	A-K.1.1.2
Answer Key	B
Depth of Knowledge	2
p-value A	16%
p-value B	50% (correct answer)
p-value C	26%
p-value D	8%
Option Annotations	The student is asked to determine what the sisters learn in the passage. Option B is the correct answer since the sisters have very different interests, but Karly is able to use her interest in digging, dirt, and rocks to help Jessie with her diorama project. When the project is just about complete, Jessie declares, "I won't call you weird anymore," indicating that she has learned to appreciate that her sister has different interests. Option A is incorrect since the sisters only reveal their differences in the passage, not the things they have in common. Option C is incorrect; although the sisters do work together to make the diorama, this does not state something they learned in the passage. Option D is incorrect; although Karly talks about the job she wants to have when she grows up, Jessie does not.

Evidence-Based Selected-Response Questions

3. This question has two parts. Answer Part One and then answer Part Two.

Part One

What is the result of Karly helping Jessie with her school project?

- Ⓐ Jessie appreciates Karly's having different interests.
- Ⓑ Jessie decides to become an archaeologist.
- Ⓒ Jessie accepts Karly's offer to finish the diorama.
- Ⓓ Jessie decides to collect different types of dolls.

Part Two

Which evidence from the passage supports the answer in Part One? Choose two answers.

- Ⓐ “ ‘A granite cave,’ I replied, ‘it’s perfect.’ ”
- Ⓑ “ ‘I have a miniature boy doll I can dress up like a caveman!’ Jessie exclaimed.”
- Ⓒ “ ‘I won’t call you weird anymore.’ ”
- Ⓓ “ ‘I’d be lost without you for my sister,’ Jessie said as she gave me a hug.”

Item Information
Alignment	A-K.1.1.3
Answer Key: Part One	A
Answer Key: Part Two	C, D
Depth of Knowledge	3
Mean Score	1.40
Option Annotations	The student is asked to determine the result of Karly helping Jessie with her project and to select two sentences from the passage that support this answer. Part One: Option A is the correct answer since Jessie is thankful Karly is able to help her with her diorama project. Option B is incorrect since Jessie is not sure which type of scientist she wants to be. Option C is incorrect since Karly does not offer to finish the diorama. Option D is incorrect; although Jessie decides to use a boy doll that she has, there is no indication that she decides to collect different types of dolls. Part Two: Options C and D are the correct answers; option C shows that Jessie will not insult Karly anymore because of her different interests, and option D shows that Jessie is glad to have Karly as her sister because Karly was able to help Jessie complete her project. Options A and B are incorrect since they do not support the idea that Jessie is appreciative of Karly's different interests.

4. This question has two parts. Answer Part One and then answer Part Two.

Mean Score	0.98
Option Annotations	The student is asked to determine the point of view used in the passage and to select one sentence from the passage that supports this answer. Part One: Option B is the correct answer since the passage is told using first-person point of view through Karly. Options A, C, and D are incorrect since they do not describe the point of view used in the passage. Part Two: Option B is the correct answer since it describes an action and uses the word “I,” which shows that Karly is telling the story. Option A is incorrect since this sentence is Jessie’s dialogue. Option C is incorrect; although this sentence uses the word “I,” it is dialogue and therefore does not show the point of view used in the passage. Option D is incorrect; although this sentence describes an action in the story, it does not use the word “I,” which is needed to show that the story is being told using first-person point of view.
