

AP[®]

INCLUDES

- ✓ Course framework
- ✓ Instructional section
- ✓ Sample exam questions

AP[®] World History: Modern

COURSE AND EXAM DESCRIPTION

Effective
Fall 2023

Sample Exam Questions

The sample exam questions that follow illustrate the relationship between the course framework and the AP World History: Modern Exam and serve as examples of the types of questions that appear on the exam. After the sample questions is a table that shows to which skill and learning objective(s), each question relates. The table also provides the answers to the multiple-choice questions.

Section I

PART A: MULTIPLE-CHOICE

Questions 1–3 refer to the passage below.

“To the most holy father, the Pope:

Most of our kingdom of Hungary was reduced to a desert by the scourge of the Mongols’ invasion. Now, we receive news every day that the Mongols have again unified their forces and will soon send their countless troops against all of Europe. We are afraid that we will be unable to withstand the Mongols’ ferocity in battle unless the Pope is able to persuade other Christian rulers to send us aid to fortify our kingdom.

When the Mongols invaded in 1241, we sent requests for military aid to the papacy, the Holy Roman Emperor, the king of France, and others. But from all of them we received only words of support. We, for shame, resorted to inviting pagan Cumans* into our kingdom.

If, God forbid, our kingdom fell to the Mongols, the door would be open for them to invade the other regions of the Catholic faith from the Hungarian steppes. So, the people in our kingdom cannot cease to be amazed that you offer substantial help to the Christian territories overseas, which if they were lost would not harm the inhabitants of Europe more than if our kingdom fell.”

*a people who dwelled along the steppes of the Black Sea and in Central Asia

King Béla IV of Hungary, letter to Pope Innocent IV, circa 1250

1. Which of the following features of Europe in the period circa 1200–1450 most directly contributed to the fact that the king of Hungary did not receive the military assistance that he requested in 1241, as mentioned in the third paragraph?
 - (A) The existence of numerous feudal states that were frequently in conflict with one another
 - (B) The development of parliaments that could check royal authority
 - (C) The growing political power of regional trade organizations such as the Hanseatic League
 - (D) The religious divisions of Europe into Protestants and Catholics as a result of the Reformation

2. Béla IV's statement in the fourth paragraph that the Hungarian people "cannot cease to be amazed" by the actions of the papacy most directly refers to the papacy's failure to aid the Hungarians while
- (A) sending missionaries to China
 - (B) supporting Christian conquests in the Iberian Peninsula
 - (C) initiating European military campaigns in the Middle East
 - (D) encouraging maritime exploration in the Indian Ocean
3. All of the following statements are factually accurate. Which would best explain Béla IV's reasoning for inviting the Cumans into Hungary as mentioned in the third paragraph?
- (A) Cumans had settled in Hungary and had been granted local autonomy.
 - (B) Cuman slave soldiers had become the rulers of the Mamluk Sultanate of Egypt.
 - (C) Cumans were ethnic Turks who spoke a language intelligible to the Mongols.
 - (D) Cumans were nomadic warriors and were familiar with the Mongols' military tactics.

Questions 4–6 refer to the following two maps.

Map 1

Navigational Map Produced by Albino De Canepa, Genoese Mapmaker, 1489

The History Collection/Alamy Stock Photo

The map shows a number of cities and places, including Genoa, Venice, Paris, the Muslim emirate of Granada, Algiers, Cairo, Jerusalem, Damascus, and several cities along the Danube River.

Map 2

World Map, Produced By Henricus Martellus,
A German Cartographer Working in Florence, Italy, Early 1490s

The Picture Art Collection/Alamy Stock Photo

4. Which of the following historical developments most strongly contributed to the mapmaker's depiction of West Africa and the southern half of the world in Map 2?
- (A) Portugal's development of maritime technology and navigational skills
 - (B) China's naval expeditions in the Indian Ocean basin
 - (C) The limited geographical knowledge of western European mapmakers as a result of the region's commercial isolation
 - (D) The decline of Mediterranean powers such as Genoa and Venice and the rise of Atlantic powers such as England, France, and the Netherlands

5. A historian would most likely use Map 1 to research which of the following developments in the period 1450–1750 ?
- (A) The efforts of wealthy Renaissance patrons to encourage the fine arts and scientific research
 - (B) The ways that European cartography drew on earlier knowledge from the Islamic world and merchant activity in the Mediterranean
 - (C) The influence of Crusades against the Ottoman Empire on the commercial expansion of Italian city-states
 - (D) The consolidation of the Russian Empire, its expansion into Siberia, and its challenge to imperial China
6. Which of the following factors would contribute most to future revisions of Map 2?
- (A) Western Europeans' discovery of geographical scholarship from the Mongol khanates
 - (B) The experiences of European merchants transporting Asian goods in the Indian Ocean
 - (C) Spanish sponsorship of trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific maritime exploration
 - (D) Qing China's resumption of maritime expeditions to expand its tribute system

Questions 7–9 refer to the passage below.

“Concerning his greatest project, the Selimiye imperial mosque, Sinan himself said this:

‘Sultan Selim II [reigned 1566–1574] ordered the building of a great mosque in the city of Edirne. I, Sinan, his humble servant, prepared for him a design showing four minaret towers, each standing at one of the four corners of an enormous central prayer hall topped by a great dome. Each of the four minarets had three balconies, with separate staircases leading to each balcony. Previously only one Ottoman mosque had a minaret with three balconies, and its one minaret is like a thick tower. But the minarets I designed for Sultan Selim’s mosque are slender and elegant. The difficulty of putting three staircases in such slender structures should be obvious to anyone.

Those among the Christians* who consider themselves architects used to say that no building can ever be covered by a dome that is larger than that of the Christian church of Hagia Sophia in Constantinople. They used to claim that no Muslim architect would ever be able to build a mosque whose dome even approaches in size that of the Hagia Sophia. Yet in the Selimiye mosque, with the help of God and with the support of His Majesty the Sultan, I was able to build a dome that is about 10 feet higher and 6 feet wider than the dome of the Hagia Sophia.”

*Sinan himself was born into an Ottoman Greek Christian family, but was converted to Islam when he began training for government service as a young boy.

Sai Mustafa Chelebi, Ottoman court official, biography of the famous Ottoman architect Mimar Sinan, written circa 1600

7. Which of the following characteristics of the Ottoman Empire best explains why Sinan was determined to match the dimensions of the Hagia Sophia church, as discussed in the third paragraph?
- (A) The Ottoman dynasty was descended from Turkic pastoralist nomads who did not have their own tradition of monumental architecture.
 - (B) Ottoman art often illustrated the historical and spiritual connections between Islam and other monotheistic religions, such as Christianity and Judaism.
 - (C) By the time the Ottoman Empire began to expand, the Byzantine Empire had already been dramatically reduced in size and geopolitical importance.
 - (D) Bringing Constantinople, with its imperial traditions, under Islamic rule was one of the central pillars of Ottoman rulers’ claims to political legitimacy.

8. Based on the intended purpose of Sinan's biography, it is most likely that the information in the passage might be
- (A) overstating the extent of the architectural challenges Sinan faced in building the mosque
 - (B) understating the extent of Ottoman royal support for the building of the mosque
 - (C) overstating Christian architects' achievements and their contributions to the building on the mosque
 - (D) intentionally attributing the building of the mosque to Sinan even though he was not the architect
9. Sinan's service to the Ottoman state best illustrates the fact that land-based empires in the period 1450–1750 often relied on
- (A) appointed bureaucrats to break the power of entrenched landed aristocracies
 - (B) mass conscription of soldiers to carry out their territorial expansion
 - (C) methods of recruitment of officials that made use of the ethnic and religious diversity of their subjects
 - (D) members of the clergy to perform religious services, administer religious law, and oversee public order

Questions 10–12 refer to the passage below.

“Imagine that Chinese ships were to start importing arsenic* into England, advertising it as a harmless, foreign and fashionable luxury. Next, imagine that after a few years of arsenic being all the rage, with hundreds of thousands using it, the British government were to ban its use because of its bad effects. Finally, imagine again that, in opposition to this ban on arsenic, Chinese ships were to be positioned off the coast of England, making occasional raids on London.

Advocates of the opium-smuggling profession argue that it is immensely profitable and that supplying opium in bulk as they are doing is not immoral and it only becomes vulgar when the opium is sold in small portions, to individual users. What admirable logic with which one may shield oneself from reality, satisfied that the opium trade is nothing more than ‘supplying an important source of revenue to British companies operating in India.’

The trade may be a profitable one—it may be of importance to the Indian government, and to individuals—but to pretend that it can be defended as harmless to health and morals is to argue the impossible. Anyone who seriously thinks about the subject cannot defend what is, in itself, manifestly indefensible.”

*a poisonous substance

“Remarks on the Opium Trade,” letter to a British magazine from an anonymous English merchant in Guangzhou (Canton),
China, published in 1836

10. The trade described in the passage is best seen as an early example of which of the following?
- (A) The economic decline of Asian states resulting from the importation of cheap consumer goods from Europe
 - (B) The growing economic influence of European immigrants in China
 - (C) The declining political power of European joint-stock companies in Asia because of states assuming direct imperial control
 - (D) The use of economic imperialism by European merchants and states
11. As described in the second paragraph, the arguments made by the supporters of the opium trade were most similar to the arguments made in the early nineteenth century by supporters of the continued use of
- (A) artisanal and craft production, as opposed to the factory system
 - (B) mercantilist trade practices, as opposed to free trade
 - (C) African slave labor on sugar plantations in the Americas
 - (D) women’s and children’s labor in the production of luxury goods in Chinese households

12. A historian might argue that the trade described in the passage reflected a turning point in world history primarily because the opium trade
- (A) shifted the pattern of historic European trade imbalances with China
 - (B) marked the transition from mercantilist trade toward capitalist free trade
 - (C) was the first time that Europeans used migrant labor to grow crops for global distribution
 - (D) relied upon industrial techniques of production and modern consumer marketing

Questions 13–15 refer to the following two passages.

Source 1

“I have long dreamed of buying an island owned by no nation whatsoever and of establishing the World Headquarters of the Dow company there, on the truly neutral ground of such an island, beholden to no nation or society. If we were located on such truly neutral ground, we could then operate in the United States as U.S. citizens, in Japan as Japanese citizens, and in Brazil as Brazilians rather than being governed primarily by the laws of the United States. We could even pay any native workers handsomely to move elsewhere.”

Carl A. Gerstacker, chairman of the Dow Chemical Company, a United States corporation, speech before the White House “Conference on the Industrial World Ahead,” 1972

Source 2

“I was asked the other day about United States competitiveness in the world economy. I replied that I don’t think about it at all. We at NCR think of ourselves as a globally competitive company that happens to be headquartered in the United States.”

Gilbert Williamson, president of NCR Corporation, a United States technology company, interview with the New York Times, 1989

13. The views expressed in the two passages were most directly enabled by which of the following economic trends in the late twentieth century?
- (A) Many of the defeated countries in the Second World War received generous economic assistance from the United States after the war.
 - (B) Governments in newly independent postcolonial states sought to limit their countries’ economic reliance on the former colonial powers.
 - (C) The governments of many developed Western countries adopted policies of economic liberalization and deregulation.
 - (D) Governments in Asia cooperated with private businesses in an effort to maximize exports and acquire foreign currencies from Europe and the United States.
14. The corporate philosophy reflected in the two passages most directly contributed to which of the following?
- (A) The inability of the Soviet-planned economy to compete successfully with the economies of the United States and other Western countries
 - (B) The shift of manufacturing capacity from the postindustrial countries of the West to the new manufacturing centers in Asia and Latin America
 - (C) The passage of stronger measures to safeguard workers’ and consumers’ rights in many developed countries
 - (D) Increased popular hostility toward economic migrants and migrations in many countries

15. In the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries, which of the following was most directly a response to the business philosophy expressed in the two passages?
- (A) Trade unionism
 - (B) Liberation theology
 - (C) International Socialism
 - (D) Antiglobalization activism

PART B: SHORT-ANSWER QUESTION WITH PRIMARY SOURCE

The following is an example of short-answer question 2 found on the AP Exam. Note that on the actual AP Exam, students will answer three short-answer questions.

2. Use the passage below to answer all parts of the question that follows.

“Having questioned Sidotti,* I understand that Christians teach that their God produced heaven and earth and make him out to be the Great Lord and Father. This God of theirs, they say, cannot be served without giving him all of one’s love and all of one’s reverence. What these Christians are in effect saying is this: I have a [real] father, but I do not love him because I reserve all my love for God; I have a [real] lord, but I don’t revere him because I reserve all my reverence for God. Now this is what we call being impious and disloyal! According to the Book of Rites, it is the emperor, the Son of Heaven, who should be worshipping God, the Lord of Heaven. It is not a duty that is given to ordinary people. And that is in order to prevent the blurring of the line between the exalted and the base. Thus, the sovereign is Heaven to the subjects just as the father is Heaven to the child.”

*Giovanni Battista Sidotti was an Italian priest who had entered Japan in 1708, in violation of the Japanese government’s prohibition on Christian missionary activities.

Arai Hakuseki, Japanese scholar and adviser to the Tokugawa shogun, report, circa 1720

- (A) Describe ONE way in which Hakuseki’s argument was influenced by long-standing Asian cultural traditions.
- (B) Explain ONE way in which the religious encounter referred to in the passage differed from most other religious encounters in the period circa 1450–1750.
- (C) Explain ONE historical situation in the period 1450–1750, other than the one illustrated in the passage, in which states in Asia or Africa adopted policies to limit European political power or cultural influence.

Section II

The following are examples of the kinds of free-response questions found on the exam. Note that on the actual AP Exam, students will answer one document-based question and will select one of the three long essay questions to answer.

DOCUMENT-BASED QUESTION

1. Evaluate the extent to which the experience of the First World War changed relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples.

In your response you should do the following:

- Respond to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis or claim that establishes a line of reasoning.
- Describe a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.
- Support an argument in response to the prompt using at least four documents.
- Use at least one additional piece of specific historical evidence (beyond that found in the documents) relevant to an argument about the prompt.
- For at least two documents, explain how or why the document's point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience is relevant to an argument.
- Demonstrate a complex understanding of a historical development related to the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.

Document 1

Source: John Chilembwe, native of British Nyasaland (present-day Malawi) and ordained Baptist minister, letter sent to the Nyasaland Times,* November 1914.

We have been invited to shed our innocent blood in this world war which is now in progress. In the past, it was said indirectly that Africa had nothing to do with the civilized world. But now we find that the poor African has already been plunged into the great war. The masses of our people are ready to put on uniforms, ignorant of what they have to face or why they have to face it. We natives have been loyal since the commencement of this [British] Government, and in all departments of Nyasaland the welfare of the British would have been incomplete without our loyalty. But in time of peace the Government failed to help the underdog. In time of peace everything was for Europeans only. But in time of war it has been found that we are needed to share hardships and shed our blood in equality. The poor Africans who have nothing to win in this present world are invited to die for a cause which is not theirs.

*The letter was published but later retracted by the newspaper's British editors, and the entire issue was subsequently withdrawn from circulation and destroyed by the Nyasaland colonial government.

Document 2

Source: Kalyan Mukerji, Indian officer in the British Indian army that was fighting against the Ottoman army in Iraq, letter to a friend in India, October 1915. The letter was intercepted by British mail censors and was not delivered.

England is the educator. The patriotism that the English have taught us, the patriotism that all civilized nations have celebrated—that patriotism is responsible for all this bloodshed. We see now that all that patriotism means is snatching away another man's country. To show patriotism, nationalism, by killing thousands and thousands of people all to snatch away a bit of land, well it's the English who have taught us this.

The youths of our country, seeing this, have started to practice this brutal form of nationalism. Therefore, killing a number of people, throwing bombs—they have started doing these horrific things. Shame on patriotism. As long as this narrow-mindedness continues, bloodshed in the name of patriotism will not cease. Whether a man throws a bomb from the roof-top or whether fifty men, under orders from their officer, start firing from a cannon-gun at the front line—the cause of this bloodshed, this madness, is the same.

Document 3

Source: French postcard, showing colonial troops in France and French civilians, 1915. The text of the card says: "Our Black troops in the Great War 1914–1915 [say]: 'What are we doing here?! . . . We came to kill savages* . . . the German ones!'"

Keystone-France/Contributor

*a reference to the fact that German wartime propaganda often depicted colonial troops in the French and British armies as savages

Document 4

Source: Behari Lal, Indian soldier in the British Indian army on the Western Front, letter to his family, November 1917. The letter was intercepted by British mail censors and was not delivered.

There is no likelihood of our getting rest during the winter. I am sure German prisoners would not be worse off in any way than we are. I had to go three nights without sleep, as I was on a truck, and the Europeans on the truck did not like to sleep next to me because I am an Indian. I am sorry the hatred between Europeans and Indians is increasing instead of decreasing, and I am sure the fault is not with the Indians. I am sorry to write this, which is not a hundredth part of what is in mind, but this increasing hatred and continued ill-treatment has compelled me to give you a hint.

Document 5

Source: Popular Egyptian protest song sung during the Egyptian revolt of 1919 against the British occupation of Egypt. The revolt led to Great Britain's recognition of Egypt's nominal independence in 1922.

Laborers and soldiers were forced to travel, leaving their land

They headed to the battlefields and the trenches!

And now the British blame us for revolting?

Behold the calamities you have caused! Had it not been for our laborers,
You and your troops would have been helpless in the desert sand!

Oh, you who are in authority, why didn't you go all alone to the Dardanelles?*

Oh Maxwell now you feel the hardships, how does it feel?

The Egyptian is resilient; and now he is willing and able and can do anything.

His achievements are worthy of praise, and he will do his all to gain a constitution.

We are the sons of Pharaohs, which no one can dispute. . . .

*The Dardanelles, a narrow strait of water in northwest Turkey, was the site of the famous 1915–1916 Gallipoli campaign. During the campaign, Allied forces attacked the Ottoman Empire and were defeated.

British commander in Egypt in 1915

Document 6

Source: Hubert Reid, Jamaican veteran of a West Indian regiment in the British Army and leader of a labor union formed to defend the rights of Jamaican war veterans, petition to the British colonial government, 1935.

It has taken 17 years of countless petitions, marching through the streets of Kingston,* as well as agitations before we were given worthless lands in some of the most remote parts of the island without even a well-needed five-pound bill to assist us in making a shabby shelter, much less in trying to cultivate the place for an existence. In some cases, not even wild birds would care to inhabit the worthless lands that we were given. Not even an inch is suitable for cultivation, and as far as roads are concerned, the inaccessibility of the places renders that impossible.

*the Jamaican capital

Document 7

Source: Nar Diouf, African veteran of a West African regiment in the French army, interview for an oral history project, 1982.

My experience in the war gave me many lasting things. I demonstrated my dignity and courage, and I won the respect of my people and the [French colonial] government. In the years immediately after the war, whenever the people of my village had something to contest with the French—and they didn't dare do it themselves because they were afraid—I would go and take care of it for them. And many times when people had problems with the government, I would go with my war decorations and arrange the situation for them. Because whenever the French saw your decorations, they knew that they are dealing with a very important person. So I gained this ability—to obtain justice over the Europeans—from the war.

For example, one day a French military doctor was in our village, and there was a small boy who was blind. The boy was walking, but he couldn't see and he bumped into the Frenchman. And the Frenchman turned and pushed the boy down on the ground. And when I saw this, I came and said to the Frenchman: "Why did you push the boy? Can't you see that he is blind?" And he looked at me and said: "Oh, pardon, pardon. I did not know. I will never do it again, excuse me!" But before the war, it would not have been possible for me to interact like that with a European, no matter what he had done.

LONG ESSAY QUESTION

The following is an example of a long essay question. Free-response questions 2, 3, and 4 in Section II of the AP Exam are long essay questions, and students will select one question of the three to answer.

2. In the nineteenth century, various political and social groups in industrial societies called for reforms.

Develop an argument that evaluates the extent to which reform movements in the nineteenth century succeeded in bringing about political or social change in industrial society.

In your response you should do the following:

- Respond to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis or claim that establishes a line of reasoning.
- Describe a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.
- Support an argument in response to the prompt using at least two pieces of specific and relevant evidence.
- Use historical reasoning (e.g., comparison, causation, continuity or change) to frame or structure an argument that addresses the prompt.
- Demonstrate a complex understanding of a historical development related to the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.

Answer Key and Question Alignment to Course Framework

Multiple-Choice Question	Answer	Skill	Learning Objective
1	A	4.A	Unit 1: Learning Objective L
2	C	5.A	Unit 2: Learning Objective D
3	D	5.B	Unit 2: Learning Objective D
4	A	5.A	Unit 4: Learning Objective C
5	B	4.A	Unit 4: Learning Objective A
6	C	5.A	Unit 4: Learning Objective C
7	D	4.B	Unit 3: Learning Objective A
8	A	2.B	Unit 3: Learning Objective B
9	C	4.A	Unit 3: Learning Objective B
10	D	1.A	Unit 6: Learning Objective E
11	C	5.A	Unit 4: Learning Objective I
12	A	5.B	Unit 6: Learning Objective E
13	C	2.A	Unit 9: Learning Objective D
14	B	5.A	Unit 9: Learning Objective D
15	D	5.A	Unit 9: Learning Objective G

Short-Answer Question	Skill	Learning Objective
1	2.A, 5.B	Unit 1: Learning Objective B; Unit 4: Learning Objectives E, K, M

Free-Response Question	Question Type	Skill	Thematic Focus	Learning Objective
1	Document-based	1.B, 2.B, 4.A, 5.B, 6.A, 6.B, 6.C, 6.D	GOV, TEC	Unit 7: Learning Objectives B, C, E, F, G,
2	Long essay	1.A, 1.B, 4.A, 5.B, 6.A, 6.B, 6.C, 6.D	ECN, GOV, SIO, TEC	Unit 5: Learning Objectives D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K

The scoring information for the questions within this course and exam description, along with further exam resources, can be found on the AP World History Exam Page on AP Central.

AP History Rubrics

Introductory notes:

- Except where otherwise noted, each point of the rubric is earned independently. For instance, a student could earn a point for evidence beyond the documents without earning a point for thesis/claim.
- Accuracy: The components of this rubric each require that students demonstrate historically defensible content knowledge. Given the timed nature of the exam, a response may contain errors that do not detract from its overall quality, as long as the historical content used to advance the argument is accurate.
- Clarity: Exam essays should be considered first drafts and thus may contain grammatical errors. Those errors will not be counted against a student unless they obscure the successful demonstration of the content knowledge, skills, and reasoning processes described in the rubrics.

AP History DBQ Rubric (7 points)

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria	Decision Rules
A. THESIS/CLAIM (0–1 pt)	1 pt. Responds to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis/claim that establishes a line of reasoning.	To earn this point, the thesis must make a claim that responds to the prompt rather than restating or rephrasing the prompt. The thesis must consist of one or more sentences located in one place, either in the introduction or the conclusion.
B. CONTEXTUALIZATION (0–1 pt)	1 pt. Describes a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.	To earn this point, the response must describe broader historical events, developments, or processes that occur before, during, or continue after the time frame of the prompt that are relevant to the topic. This point is not awarded for merely a phrase or reference.

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria	Decision Rules
C. EVIDENCE (0–3 pts)	Evidence From the Documents 1 pt. Uses the content of at least three documents to address the topic of the prompt. OR 2 pts. Supports an argument in response to the prompt using at least four documents.	To earn one point, the response must accurately describe — rather than simply quote — the content from at least three of the documents. To earn two points, the response must accurately describe — rather than simply quote — the content from at least four documents. In addition, the response must use the content of the four documents to support an argument in response to the prompt.
	Evidence Beyond the Documents 1 pt. Uses at least one additional piece of specific historical evidence (beyond that found in the documents) relevant to an argument in response to the prompt.	To earn this point, the response must describe the evidence and must use more than a phrase or reference. This additional piece of evidence must be different from the evidence used to earn the point for contextualization.

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria	Decision Rules
D. ANALYSIS AND REASONING (0–2 pts)	1 pt. For at least two documents, explains how or why the document’s point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience is relevant to an argument.	To earn this point, the response must explain how or why (rather than simply identifying) the document’s point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to an argument about the prompt for each of the two documents sourced.
	1 pt. Demonstrates a complex understanding of the historical development that is the focus of the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.	A response may demonstrate a complex understanding through sophisticated argumentation that is relevant to the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Explaining multiple themes or perspectives to explore complexity or nuance; OR - Explaining multiple causes or effects, multiple similarities or differences, or multiple continuities or changes; OR - Explaining both cause and effect, both similarity and difference, or both continuity and change; OR - Explaining relevant and insightful connections within and across periods or geographical areas. These connections should clearly relate to an argument that responds to the prompt. A response may demonstrate a complex understanding through effective use of evidence relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Effectively using seven documents to support an argument that responds to the prompt; OR - Explaining how the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience of at least four documents supports an argument that responds to the prompt; OR - Using documents and evidence beyond the documents effectively to demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives relevant to the prompt. This complex understanding must be part of the argument and may be demonstrated in any part of the response. While it is not necessary for this complex understanding to be woven throughout the response, it must be more than merely a phrase or reference.

AP History Long Essay Question Rubric

AP History LEQ Rubric (6 points)

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria	Decision Rules
A. THESIS/CLAIM (0–1 pt)	1 pt. Responds to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis/claim that establishes a line of reasoning.	To earn this point, the thesis must make a claim that responds to the prompt, rather than restating or rephrasing the prompt. The thesis must consist of one or more sentences located in one place, either in the introduction or the conclusion.
B. CONTEXTUALIZATION (0–1 pt)	1 pt. Describes a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.	To earn this point, the response must describe broader historical events, developments, or processes that occur before, during, or continue after the time frame of the prompt that are relevant to the topic. This point is not awarded for merely a phrase or a reference.
C. EVIDENCE (0–2 pts)	1 pt. Provides specific examples of at least two pieces of evidence relevant to the topic of the prompt. OR 2 pts. Supports an argument in response to the prompt using at least two pieces of specific and relevant evidence.	To earn one point, the response must identify specific historical examples relevant to the topic of the prompt. To earn two points the response must use specific historical evidence to support an argument in response to the prompt.

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria		Decision Rules
D. ANALYSIS AND REASONING (0–2 pts)	1 pt. Uses historical reasoning (e.g. comparison, causation, CCOT) to frame or structure an argument that addresses the prompt.	OR 2 pts. Demonstrates a complex understanding of the historical development that is the focus of the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.	To earn the first point, the response must demonstrate the use of historical reasoning to frame or structure an argument, although the reasoning might be uneven or imbalanced, or the evidence may be overly general or lacking specificity. To earn the second point, the response may demonstrate a complex understanding through sophisticated argumentation that is relevant to the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Explaining multiple themes or perspectives to explore complexity or nuance; OR - Explaining multiple causes or effects, multiple similarities or differences, or multiple continuities or changes; OR - Explaining both cause and effect, both similarity and difference, or both continuity and change; OR - Explaining relevant and insightful connections within and across periods or geographical areas. These connections should clearly relate to an argument that responds to the prompt. A response may demonstrate a complex or nuanced understanding through effective use of evidence relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Explaining how multiple pieces of specific and relevant evidence (at least four) support a nuanced or complex argument that responds to the prompt; OR - Using evidence effectively to demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives relevant to the prompt. This complex understanding must be part of the argument and may be demonstrated in any part of the response. While it is not necessary for this complex understanding to be woven throughout the response, it must be more than merely a phrase or reference.

Scoring Guidelines

Part B: Short-Answer Question with Secondary Source

1. Use the passage below to answer all parts of the question that follows.

“Having questioned Sidotti,* I understand that Christians teach that their God produced heaven and earth and make him out to be the Great Lord and Father. This God of theirs, they say, cannot be served without giving him all of one’s love and all of one’s reverence. What these Christians are in effect saying is this: I have a [real] father, but I do not love him because I reserve all my love for God; I have a [real] lord, but I don’t revere him because I reserve all my reverence for God. Now this is what we call being impious and disloyal! According to the Book of Rites, it is the emperor, the Son of Heaven, who should be worshiping God, the Lord of Heaven. It is not a duty that is given to ordinary people. And that is in order to prevent the blurring of the line between the exalted and the base. Thus, the sovereign is Heaven to the subjects just as the father is Heaven to the child.”

*Giovanni Battista Sidotti was an Italian priest who had entered Japan in 1708, in violation of the Japanese government’s prohibition on Christian missionary activities.

Arai Hakuseki, Japanese scholar and adviser to the Tokugawa shogun, report, circa 1720

- (A) Describe ONE way in which Hakuseki’s argument was influenced by long-standing Asian cultural traditions.
- (B) Explain ONE way in which the religious encounter referred to in the passage differed from most other religious encounters in the period circa 1450–1750.
- (C) Explain ONE historical situation in the period 1450–1750, other than the one illustrated in the passage, in which states in Asia or Africa adopted policies to limit European political power or cultural influence.

General Scoring Notes

- Each point is earned independently.
- Accuracy: These scoring guidelines require that students demonstrate historically defensible content knowledge. Given the timed nature of the exam, responses may contain errors that do not detract from their overall quality, as long as the historical content used to advance the argument is accurate.
- Clarity: Exam responses should be considered first drafts and thus may contain grammatical errors. Those errors will not be counted against a student unless they obscure the successful demonstration of the content knowledge, skills, and reasoning processes described below.
- Describe: Provide the relevant characteristics of a specified topic. Description requires more than simply mentioning an isolated term.
- Explain: Provide information about how or why a historical development or process occurs or how or why a relationship exists.

Scoring Guidelines for Part B: Short-Answer Question with Secondary Source

3 points

- (a) Describe one way in which Hakuseki's argument was influenced by long-standing Asian cultural traditions. 1 point

Examples that earn this point include the following:

- Hakuseki's argument was influenced by Confucianism.
- Hakuseki's argument that sovereign is Heaven to the subjects and the father is Heaven to the child was influenced by Confucian beliefs.
- Hakuseki's argument that only the emperor is supposed to serve the Lord of Heaven reflects the beliefs of Confucianism.

- (b) Explain one way in which the religious encounter referred to in the passage differed from most other religious encounters in the period circa 1450–1750. 1 point

Examples that earn this point include the following:

- One important difference is that most Christian missionaries and Muslim Sufis traveled across the world and spread their religion without being banned by other governments.
- One important difference between the circumstances of the religious encounter in eighteenth-century Japan and other religious encounters in the period 1450–1750 is that religious interactions in this period more frequently led to the development of syncretic belief systems such as Vodou or Santería than the outright banning of the preaching of a religion.
- One important difference between the Tokugawa shogunate banning the preaching of Christianity and most other religious interactions in the period 1450–1750 is that some governments, such as the Mughal Empire under Akbar, encouraged religious tolerance and interaction.

- (c) Explain one historical situation in the period 1450–1750, other than the one illustrated in the passage, in which states in Asia or Africa adopted policies to limit European political power or cultural influence. 1 point

Examples that earn this point include the following:

- The Mughal emperors of India and the African kings of Kongo attempted to restrict European merchants to certain towns and trading posts.
- The Ming and Qing emperors of China confined the Portuguese merchants to Macao and placed legal restrictions on converting to Christianity.
- Although the Safavid Empire allowed European merchants to settle in some cities and even serve as advisors at court, preaching Christianity was strictly forbidden.

Total for Part B (Question 1) 3 points

Document-Based Question

1. Evaluate the extent to which the experience of the First World War changed relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples.

In your response you should do the following:

- Respond to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis or claim that establishes a line of reasoning.
- Describe a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.
- Support an argument in response to the prompt using at least four documents.
- Use at least one additional piece of specific historical evidence (beyond that found in the documents) relevant to an argument about the prompt.
- For at least two documents, explain how or why the document's point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience is relevant to an argument.
- Demonstrate a complex understanding of a historical development related to the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.

Document 1

Source: John Chilembwe, native of British Nyasaland (present-day Malawi) and ordained Baptist minister, letter sent to the Nyasaland Times,* November 1914.

We have been invited to shed our innocent blood in this world war which is now in progress. In the past, it was said indirectly that Africa had nothing to do with the civilized world. But now we find that the poor African has already been plunged into the great war. The masses of our people are ready to put on uniforms, ignorant of what they have to face or why they have to face it. We natives have been loyal since the commencement of this [British] Government, and in all departments of Nyasaland the welfare of the British would have been incomplete without our loyalty. But in time of peace the Government failed to help the underdog. In time of peace everything was for Europeans only. But in time of war it has been found that we are needed to share hardships and shed our blood in equality. The poor Africans who have nothing to win in this present world are invited to die for a cause which is not theirs.

*The letter was published but later retracted by the newspaper's British editors, and the entire issue was subsequently withdrawn from circulation and destroyed by the Nyasaland colonial government.

Document 2

Source: Kalyan Mukerji, Indian officer in the British Indian army that was fighting against the Ottoman army in Iraq, letter to a friend in India, October 1915. The letter was intercepted by British mail censors and was not delivered.

England is the educator. The patriotism that the English have taught us, the patriotism that all civilized nations have celebrated—that patriotism is responsible for all this bloodshed. We see now that all that patriotism means is snatching away another man's country. To show patriotism, nationalism, by killing thousands and thousands of people all to snatch away a bit of land, well it's the English who have taught us this.

The youths of our country, seeing this, have started to practice this brutal form of nationalism. Therefore, killing a number of people, throwing bombs—they have started doing these horrific things. Shame on patriotism. As long as this narrow-mindedness continues, bloodshed in the name of patriotism will not cease. Whether a man throws a bomb from the roof-top or whether fifty men, under orders from their officer, start firing from a cannon-gun at the front line—the cause of this bloodshed, this madness, is the same.

Document 3

Source: French postcard, showing colonial troops in France and French civilians, 1915. The text of the card says: “Our Black troops in the Great War 1914–1915 [say]: ‘What are we doing here?! . . . We came to kill savages*. . . the German ones!’”

Keystone-France/Contributor

*a reference to the fact that German wartime propaganda often depicted colonial troops in the French and British armies as savages

Document 4

Source: Behari Lal, Indian soldier in the British Indian army on the Western Front, letter to his family, November 1917. The letter was intercepted by British mail censors and was not delivered.

There is no likelihood of our getting rest during the winter. I am sure German prisoners would not be worse off in any way than we are. I had to go three nights without sleep, as I was on a truck, and the Europeans on the truck did not like to sleep next to me because I am an Indian. I am sorry the hatred between Europeans and Indians is increasing instead of decreasing, and I am sure the fault is not with the Indians. I am sorry to write this, which is not a hundredth part of what is in mind, but this increasing hatred and continued ill-treatment has compelled me to give you a hint.

Document 5

Source: Popular Egyptian protest song sung during the Egyptian revolt of 1919 against the British occupation of Egypt. The revolt led to Great Britain's recognition of Egypt's nominal independence in 1922.

Laborers and soldiers were forced to travel, leaving their land

They headed to the battlefields and the trenches!

And now the British blame us for revolting?

Behold the calamities you have caused! Had it not been for our laborers,

You and your troops would have been helpless in the desert sand!

Oh, you who are in authority, why didn't you go all alone to the Dardanelles?*

Oh Maxwell now you feel the hardships, how does it feel?

The Egyptian is resilient; and now he is willing and able and can do anything.

His achievements are worthy of praise, and he will do his all to gain a constitution.

We are the sons of Pharaohs, which no one can dispute. . . .

*The Dardanelles, a narrow strait of water in northwest Turkey, was the site of the famous 1915–1916 Gallipoli campaign. During the campaign, Allied forces attacked the Ottoman Empire and were defeated.

British commander in Egypt in 1915

Document 6

Source: Hubert Reid, Jamaican veteran of a West Indian regiment in the British Army and leader of a labor union formed to defend the rights of Jamaican war veterans, petition to the British colonial government, 1935.

It has taken 17 years of countless petitions, marching through the streets of Kingston,* as well as agitations before we were given worthless lands in some of the most remote parts of the island without even a well-needed five-pound bill to assist us in making a shabby shelter, much less in trying to cultivate the place for an existence. In some cases, not even wild birds would care to inhabit the worthless lands that we were given. Not even an inch is suitable for cultivation, and as far as roads are concerned, the inaccessibility of the places renders that impossible.

*the Jamaican capital

Document 7

Source: Nar Diouf, African veteran of a West African regiment in the French army, interview for an oral history project, 1982.

My experience in the war gave me many lasting things. I demonstrated my dignity and courage, and I won the respect of my people and the [French colonial] government. In the years immediately after the war, whenever the people of my village had something to contest with the French—and they didn't dare do it themselves because they were afraid—I would go and take care of it for them. And many times when people had problems with the government, I would go with my war decorations and arrange the situation for them. Because whenever the French saw your decorations, they knew that they are dealing with a very important person. So I gained this ability—to obtain justice over the Europeans—from the war.

For example, one day a French military doctor was in our village, and there was a small boy who was blind. The boy was walking, but he couldn't see and he bumped into the Frenchman. And the Frenchman turned and pushed the boy down on the ground. And when I saw this, I came and said to the Frenchman: "Why did you push the boy? Can't you see that he is blind?" And he looked at me and said: "Oh, pardon, pardon. I did not know. I will never do it again, excuse me!" But before the war, it would not have been possible for me to interact like that with a European, no matter what he had done.

General Scoring Notes

- Except where otherwise noted, each point of these rubrics is earned independently; for example, a student could earn a point for evidence without earning a point for thesis/claim.
- Accuracy: The components of these rubrics require that students demonstrate historically defensible content knowledge. Given the timed nature of the exam, essays may contain errors that do not detract from their overall quality, as long as the historical content used to advance the argument is accurate.
- Clarity: Exam essays should be considered first drafts and thus may contain grammatical errors. Those errors will not be counted against a student unless they obscure the successful demonstration of the content knowledge, skills, and practices described below.

Evaluate the extent to which the experience of the First World War changed relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples.

Document-Based Question, First World War

7 points

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row A Thesis/Claim (0-1 points)	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Responds to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis/claim that establishes a line of reasoning.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn this point: - Are not historically defensible. - Only restate or rephrase the prompt. - Do not respond to the prompt. - Do not establish a line of reasoning. - Are overgeneralized.	Responses that earn this point: The response must provide a historically defensible thesis or claim that establishes a position on the extent to which the experience of the First World War changed relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples. The thesis or claim must either provide some indication of the reason for making that claim OR establish categories of the argument.
	Examples that do not earn this point: Provide a historically defensible claim, but do not establish a line of reasoning "The First World War was a major turning point in the relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples in Africa and Asia." Establish a line of reasoning, but do not provide a historically defensible claim "Since the Great War was mostly a European conflict, it had almost no influence on European colonies or colonial peoples."	Examples that earn this point: Establish a line of reasoning that evaluates the topic of the prompt "Although many people in the colonies at first responded patriotically to the call to arms, their experiences during the war led to disillusionment and questioning of the colonial order." Establish a line of reasoning that evaluates the topic of the prompt with analytic categories "Despite the sacrifices of colonial troops, the war did not change the basic political relationship between Europeans and their colonies. Europeans continued to view colonized peoples as inferior and, except for a few small cultural changes, did not take any meaningful steps toward giving them greater rights or self-rule after 1918." Establish a line of reasoning "The experience of the First World War greatly changed the relationship between Europeans and colonized peoples because the war showed that Europeans needed colonial troops to fight their wars." (Minimally acceptable thesis/claim)
Additional Notes: - The thesis or claim must consist of one or more sentences located in one place, either in the introduction or the conclusion (which may not be limited to the first or last paragraphs). - The thesis or claim must identify a relevant development(s) in the period, although it is not required to encompass the entire period.

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row B Contextualization (0-1 points)	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Describes a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn this point: - Provide an overgeneralized statement about the time period referenced in the prompt. - Provide context that is not relevant to the prompt. - Provide a passing phrase or reference.	Responses that earn this point: Accurately describe a context relevant to the First World War or interactions between Europeans and colonized peoples before or during the First World War
	Examples that do not earn this point: Do not provide context relevant to the topic of the prompt "The Great War began as a relatively small conflict in the Balkans escalated into a global war. The systems of alliances, war strategies, and mobilization plans made it impossible to contain and stop the conflict."	Examples of relevant context that earn this point include the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided: - The causes of the First World War - European empire-building in South Asia - The Scramble for Africa - Cultural, economic, or racial justifications of imperialism Examples of acceptable contextualization: "Both Great Britain and France had long recruited local troops in their colonies and had used them to suppress revolts and expand their colonial empires. When World War I started, it was pretty clear that it will be a 'total war' requiring all the resources countries could muster - so it was a foregone conclusion that these colonial armies will be used, whether on European fronts or in Asia and Africa." "During the Scramble for Africa, many European countries invaded African lands, creating colonies and drawing new borders." (Minimally acceptable contextualization)
	Additional Notes: - The response must describe broader historical events, developments, or processes that occur before, during, or continue after the time frame of the question that are relevant to the topic of the prompt. - To earn this point, the context provided must be more than a phrase or reference.

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row C Evidence (0-3 points)	Evidence from the Documents
	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Uses the content of at least three documents to address the topic of the prompt.	2 points Supports an argument in response to the prompt using at least four documents.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn points: - Use evidence from less than three of the documents - Misinterpret the content of the document - Quote, without an accompanying description, of the content of the documents - Address documents collectively rather than considering separately the content of each document	Responses that earn 1 point: Accurately describe — rather than simply quote — the content from at least three of the documents to address the topic of the First World War and colonial relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples.	Responses that earn 2 points: Support an argument in response to the prompt by accurately using the content of at least four documents.
		Examples of describing the content of a document: Describe evidence from the documents relevant to the topic but do not use that evidence to support an argument (Document 2) “Officer Kalyan Mukerji’s letter to a friend in India shows that the experience of war has changed his views of England so that now he sees English-style nationalism as nothing but an excuse to kill and conquer other people.”	Examples of supporting an argument using the content of a document: (Document 1): “John Chilembwe’s letter to the Nyasaland Times shows that Europeans’ need for African recruits has changed the relationship between colonizers and colonial peoples because the British in Nyasaland now have to appeal to Africans’ sense of duty and patriotism. But, after seeing how Europeans have treated their colonial subjects in peacetime, Chilembwe isn’t buying it.” (Uses evidence from the document to support an argument about how the First World War changed the relationships between Europeans and colonized peoples, as well as the attitudes towards those relationships) (Document 5): “The lyrics of the Egyptian protest song demonstrate how the experience of World War I has given Egyptians greater confidence to assert their demands before their British colonial government. The song reminds the British of the contributions Egyptians made during the war and forcefully demands that Britain grant Egypt its own constitution.” (Uses evidence from the document to support an argument about how the experience of the war changed perceptions of the relationships between colonized peoples and Europeans)
	Additional Notes: To earn two points, the four documents do not have to be used in support of a single argument—they can be used across sub-arguments or to address counterarguments.

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row C (continued)	Evidence beyond the Documents:
	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Uses at least one additional piece of specific historical evidence (beyond that found in the documents) relevant to an argument in response to the prompt.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn this point: - Provide evidence that is not relevant to an argument about the prompt. - Provide evidence that is outside the time period or region specified in the prompt. - Repeat information that is specified in the prompt or in any of the documents. - Provide a passing phrase or reference.	Responses that earn this point: Must use at least one specific piece of historical evidence relevant to an argument about the extent to which there were changes in relationships between Europeans and colonized people that resulted from the First World War.
		Examples of specific and relevant evidence beyond the documents that earn this point include the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided: - Specific anti-imperial resistance movements, anti-colonial / pro-independence movements - Specific Western-educated independence / decolonization figures - Specific conflicts associated with colonialism or anti-colonialism - The League of Nations mandate system and its effects in holding back full independence during the interwar period - Specific Western-educated independence / decolonization figures Examples of evidence beyond the documents relevant to an argument about the prompt: "Many colonized people had hoped that after the end of the war they would be rewarded by their service by giving them fuller citizenship rights, if not outright independence. But the peace treaties left the British and French empires untouched and actually expanded them through the Mandate system." (Provides a piece of evidence not in the documents relevant to an argument about the prompt) "The British generally trusted their Indian troops and, before WWI broke out, had used in several campaigns outside of India, for example in East Africa and in China during the Boxer rebellion." (Provides a piece of evidence not in the documents relevant to an argument about the prompt)
	Additional Notes: - Typically, statements credited as evidence will be more specific than statements credited as contextualization. - To earn this point, the evidence provided must be different from the evidence used to earn the point for contextualization. - To earn this point, the evidence provided must be more than a phrase or reference. - The point for evidence beyond the documents may be awarded for evidence that appears in any part of the response.

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row D Analysis and Reasoning (0-2 points)	Sourcing
	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point For at least two documents, explains how or why the document's point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience is relevant to an argument.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn this point: - Explain sourcing for fewer than two of the documents. - Identify the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience but fail to explain how or why it is relevant to an argument. - Summarize the content or argument of the document without explaining the relevance of this summary to the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience. Examples that do not earn this point: Identify the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience, but do not explain how or why it is relevant to an argument "In document 7, the audience is the researcher and the people who will read it later." Summarize the content of the document without explaining the relevance of this to the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience "The purpose of document 4 was as a letter to his family to communicate with them about the war."	Responses that earn this point: - Must explain how or why — rather than simply identifying — the document's point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt for each of the two documents sourced. Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the author's point of view: (Document 1): "As an ordained minister, John Chilembwe is probably opposed to wars in general, but in the case of the First World War he is particularly against the idea of Africans serving because he can see that there is no higher purpose to the war than European political and economic gain." (Connects the point of view of the document relevant to an argument about European/colonial relationships) Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the author's purpose: (Document 3): "Part of the French government's purpose in printing this postcard may have been to reassure the French population that African troops serving in France can be friendly and trustworthy. So even though the card shows Africans and French civilians sitting next to each other and smiling, it probably indicates that ordinary French people continued to be biased against Africans, even those fighting for their country." (Connects the audience of the document relevant to an argument about European/colonial relationships) Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the historical situation of a source: (Document 7): "Nar Diouf's experiences in the war are recorded in the 1980s as part of an oral history project. So, he has the benefit of hindsight regarding both the end of the war and the end of French colonialism in Africa. From this perspective, it is understandable that Nar Diouf emphasizes the way in which being a veteran allowed him to be effective in helping his community resist the abuses of French colonizers." (Connects the historical situation of the document relevant to an argument about European/colonial relationships)

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row D (continued)	Sourcing
		Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the audience: • (Document 4): “Even though someone writing a private letter to his family can be expected to share their honest opinion of a situation, this was not always the case with soldiers’ letters during the war. The reason for that was that soldiers knew that government censors often read their letters and could decide not to deliver them if they thought they revealed something secret or could be bad for people’s morale. For example, Behari Lal’s letter says that what he is writing ‘is not a hundredth part’ of what is on his mind, suggesting that his experiences were actually much worse than he reveals in the letter.” (Connects the audience of the document relevant to an argument about European/colonial relationships)

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row D (continued)	Complexity
	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Demonstrates a complex understanding of the historical development that is the focus of the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
		Responses that earn this point: May demonstrate a complex understanding through sophisticated argumentation that is relevant to the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Explaining multiple themes or perspectives to explore complexity or nuance; OR - Explaining multiple causes or effects, multiple similarities or differences, or multiple continuities or changes; OR - Explaining both cause and effect, both similarity and difference, or both continuity and change; OR - Explaining relevant and insightful connections within and across periods or geographical areas. These connections should clearly relate to an argument that responds to the prompt. May demonstrate a complex understanding through effective use of evidence relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Effectively using seven documents to support an argument that responds to the prompt; OR - Explaining how the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience of at least four documents supports an argument that responds to the prompt; OR - Using documents and evidence beyond the documents effectively to demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives relevant to the prompt. Demonstrating complex understanding might include any of the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided: - Analyzing multiple variables, such as the different effects of wartime experiences on the relationship between Europeans and colonized peoples. For example, an argument that the war both fostered and eroded colonial soldiers' loyalty and patriotism for their colonial empires, as the early enthusiasm for the war gave way to disillusionment and the realization that their sacrifices have been in vain. (Explains nuance)

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row D (continued)		Complexity - Analyzing multiple variables by arguing that wartime experiences sometimes challenged Europeans' sense of cultural superiority over Africans and Asians and sometimes reinforced these prejudices. (Explains nuance) - Explaining how some colonial leaders hoped that the wartime contributions of African and Asian troops would convince colonial powers to grant broader autonomy to the colonies and, when these hopes failed to materialize, Africans and Asians increasingly turned to nationalism. (Explains relevant and insightful connections) - Explaining how the war transformed European culture by leading Europeans (much as it did Africans and Asians) to question the accepted social and cultural norms. (Explains relevant and insightful connections) - Explaining relevant and insightful connections across periods, such as explaining how wars sometimes prove to be important political or cultural turning points. For example, the effects on the Napoleonic Wars on Latin American independence movements. (Explains relevant and insightful connections) - Corroborating multiple perspectives, such as explaining how different documents and other pieces of evidence corroborate an argument in spite of the differing perspectives of the authors. (Demonstrates a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives)
	Additional Notes: - This complex understanding must be part of the argument and may be demonstrated in any part of the response. - While it is not necessary for this complex understanding to be woven throughout the response, it must be more than merely a phrase or reference. - To earn a point for complexity by using seven documents in support of an argument, there must be an attempt to use all seven documents to effectively support an argument, but the use of the documents may be unevenly or inconsistently developed, or the document use may be weaker in one or two instances.

Document Summaries

Document	Summary of Content	Explains the relevance of point of view (POV), purpose, situation, and/or audience by elaborating on examples such as:
1. John Chilembwe, letter to Nyasaland Times , 1914	Criticizes the duplicity of the British who, Chilembwe argues, have maintained that Africans cannot be the equal to Europeans in peacetime but are now calling for Africans to share equally in the hardships and sacrifices of war.	- Within months of the outbreak of the war, the British have already begun recruiting African troops. (situation) - The author, an educated African (as evidenced by his being an ordained minister) is well aware of the narratives used to justify imperialism (for example the claim that “Africa had nothing to do with the civilized world” and turns these narratives around to point out the duplicity of British calls that Africans share equally in the hardships of war. (POV) - Because the letter is addressed to British settlers and colonial authorities in Nyasaland it states its objection in a relatively mild and measured way; nonetheless, the authorities ended up destroying the issue of the newspaper in which the letter was published. (audience)
2. Kalyan Mukerji, letter from the Iraq Front, 1915	Denounces patriotism and nationalism, which the author blames for the bloodshed of the war. Argues that Indian youth have turned to political violence because they have been taught the politics of patriotism by Britain.	- The British used the colonial Indian army extensively on the Mesopotamian front in present-day Iraq, against the Ottoman Empire. (situation) - Because it is a private, front-line letter to a friend in India, the letter likely describes the author’s real feelings about the war. (audience) - Alternatively, an essay may argue that the author knew all mail was read by censors, so he used the letter to convey his protest to the authorities. (audience)
3. French postcard of colonial troops in France, 1915	The postcard shows three Black French colonial troops sitting in a bench in a French town with two French civilians. Both the soldiers and the civilians are smiling and appear comfortable together.	- Whether the photo was candid or staged, the fact that it was selected by the French government to print as a postcard suggests that it presents an idealized version of colonial troops wartime experiences. (purpose, POV) - The postcard is a response to German propaganda claiming that by deploying colonial troops on the Western Front, the French (and the British) were turning Europe over to “savages.” The postcard counters that by suggesting that the real savages were the Germans - a common claim of French propaganda during the war. (situation)
4. Behari Lal, letter from the Western front, 1917	Narrates the author’s experience being transported together with British troops in a truck; the British troops would not sleep next to him because he was Indian. The author claims that a German prisoner would not have been any worse, and expresses regret that the war is exacerbating the “hatred” between Europeans and Indians.	Written on the Western Front at a point in the war when it was clear that trench warfare with little or no gain would continue for a long time. (situation)

continued on next page

Document	Summary of Content	Explains the relevance of point of view (POV), purpose, situation, and/or audience by elaborating on examples such as:
5. Egyptian protest song, 1919	Addressing the British in general and General Maxwell in particular, the song recalls the contribution of Egyptian “laborers” to British the wartime effort in the Dardanelles campaign. The song claims that Egyptians are resilient and are “sons of Pharaohs” and highlights the Egyptians’ determination to “gain a constitution.”	- Colonies’ dashed hopes of independence/autonomy in the aftermath of the war; resistance to colonial rule after the war. (situation) - The song seeks to rally ordinary Egyptians behind the cause of resisting the British by referring to Egypt’s past glory under the Pharaohs and praising the Egyptian national character. (audience)
6. Hubert Reid, petition to British colonial authorities in Jamaica, 1935	Claims that the “worthless lands” that Jamaican war veterans had received from the British colonial government after years of protests are worthless because of their poor location, lack of infrastructure, and lack of government financial support for veterans.	- Post-war veterans’ rights movements; unkept promises made by the colonial authorities to former troops. (situation) - Since the purpose is to convince the Jamaica colonial authorities to expand veteran aid, the letter likely portrays veterans’ fortunes as worse than they actually were. (purpose, POV) - The author is not only a veteran himself, but also a leader of a veterans’ labor union, therefore he is likely to have a good grasp on the problems faced by Jamaican war veterans on the “macro” level - not just his own. (POV)
7. Nar Diouf, interview recalling post-war experiences in West Africa, 1982)	Recounts the author’s experiences in West Africa after he had served in the French Army during the war. The author argues his social standing was increased because of his wartime service and decorations. Other people in his village would ask him to represent them in their dealings with the French. The author narrates an episode in which he used the respect his service commanded to confront a French man being abusive to a blind African boy.	- Interview for an oral history project, many decades after the end of the war; the elapsed time may have affected the accuracy of the memories. (situation) - The interviewee speaks from the point of view of someone important in his community and highlights the importance of his experience in the war in enhancing his social standing; he also speaks from the vantage point of the 1980s, so he sees his experiences under colonialism from the vantage point of post-colonial Africa. (POV)

Long Essay Question

2. In the nineteenth century, various political and social groups in industrial societies called for reforms.

Develop an argument that evaluates the extent to which reform movements in the nineteenth century succeeded in bringing about political or social change in industrial society.

In your response you should do the following:

- Respond to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis or claim that establishes a line of reasoning.
- Describe a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.
- Support an argument in response to the prompt using at least two pieces of specific and relevant evidence.
- Use historical reasoning (e.g., comparison, causation, continuity or change) to frame or structure an argument that addresses the prompt.
- Demonstrate a complex understanding of a historical development related to the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.

General Scoring Notes

- Except where otherwise noted, each point of these rubrics is earned independently; for example, a student could earn a point for evidence without earning a point for thesis/claim.
- Accuracy: The components of these rubrics require that students demonstrate historically defensible content knowledge. Given the timed nature of the exam, essays may contain errors that do not detract from their overall quality, as long as the historical content used to advance the argument is accurate.
- Clarity: Exam essays should be considered first drafts and thus may contain grammatical errors. Those errors will not be counted against a student unless they obscure the successful demonstration of the content knowledge, skills, and practices described below.

In the nineteenth century, various political and social groups in industrial societies called for reforms.

Develop an argument about the extent to which reform movements in the nineteenth century succeeded in bringing about political or social change in industrial society.

Long Essay Question, Nineteenth Century Reform Movements

6 points

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row A Thesis/Claim (0-1 points)	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Responds to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis/claim that establishes a line of reasoning.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn this point: - Are not historically defensible. - Only restate or rephrase the prompt. - Do not respond to the prompt. - Do not establish a line of reasoning. - Are overgeneralized.	Responses that earn this point: Provide a historically defensible thesis or claim about the extent to which reform movements succeeded in bringing about political or social change in industrial society in the nineteenth century. The thesis or claim must either provide some indication of the reason for making that claim OR establish categories of the argument.
	Examples that do not earn this point: Provide a historically defensible claim, but do not establish a line of reasoning "Nineteenth-century reform movements were successful in bringing about social change in industrial societies." Provide a restatement of the prompt "Reform movements brought about change socially, politically and economically." Do not respond to the prompt "Industrial societies in Europe experienced political revolutions and violence during the nineteenth century."	Examples that earn this point: Establish a line of reasoning that evaluates the topic of the prompt "Nineteenth-century reform movements were somewhat successful in bringing about political change in industrial societies because more people received the right to vote." "Reform movements in the nineteenth century had only limited success in bringing about political change in industrial societies because of opposition from conservatives and the bourgeoisie." Establish a line of reasoning that evaluates the topic of the prompt with analytic categories "Reform movements in the nineteenth century had only limited success in bringing about political change in industrial societies because governments were able to demonize reformers and coopt their agendas by enacting minor political changes that satisfied the majority of the population but did not fully address the complaints of reformers." Establish a line of reasoning "In the nineteenth century, reform movements brought about social change because they were able to convince governments to change labor laws." (Minimally acceptable thesis/claim)
Additional Notes: - The thesis or claim must consist of one or more sentences located in one place, either in the introduction or the conclusion (which may not be limited to the first or last paragraphs). - The thesis or claim must identify a relevant development(s) in the period, although it is not required to encompass the entire period.

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row B Contextualization (0-1 points)	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Describes a broader historical context relevant to the prompt.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn this point: - Provide an overgeneralized statement about the time period referenced in the prompt. - Provide context that is not relevant to the prompt. - Provide a passing phrase or reference. Examples that do not earn this point: Do not provide context relevant to the topic of the prompt “European transnational companies often supported the establishment of colonies in Africa in the hopes of extracting natural resources for factories in Europe.”	Responses that earn this point: - Accurately describe a context relevant to reform movements or industrial society in the nineteenth century. Examples of relevant context that earn this point include the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided: - The development of industrial technologies - The spread of industrialization from Great Britain to other regions, such as northern Europe, the United States, Russia, or Japan - The development of new social classes in industrial societies - The development of social and economic philosophies, such as laissez-faire capitalism and socialism - The development of various social reform movements in industrial societies, such as the women’s suffrage movement and the labor rights’ movement - The development of economic and social ideologies in response to the abuses of industrialization and capitalism, including various forms of socialism and communism - The increased specialization of labor through the factory system - Increased urbanization in industrial societies - The second industrial revolution Example of acceptable contextualization: “Advances in agriculture in Europe allowed for an increase in mechanization in the manufacturing of goods. This industrial revolution spread across Europe and to North America and led to challenges to traditional social and political structures.” “Increased urbanization led to significant problems for laboring classes in cities, which gave rise to reform movements.” (Minimally acceptable contextualization)
	Additional Notes: - The response must describe broader historical events, developments, or processes that occur before, during, or continue after the time frame of the question that are relevant to the topic of the prompt. - To earn this point, the context provided must be more than a phrase or reference.

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row C Evidence (0-2 points)	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Provides specific examples of at least two pieces of evidence relevant to the topic of the prompt.	2 points Supports an argument in response to the prompt using at least two pieces of specific and relevant evidence.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn points: - Identify a single piece of evidence. - Provide evidence that is not relevant to the topic of the prompt. - Provide evidence that is outside the time period or region specified in the prompt. - Repeat information that is specified in the prompt.	Responses that earn 1 point: Identify at least two specific historical examples relevant to reform movements or industrial society in the nineteenth century.	Responses that earn 2 points: Use at least two specific historical examples to support an argument regarding how reform movements brought about political or social change in industrial society in the nineteenth century.
	Examples that do not earn points: Repeat information that is specified in the prompt "Many reform movements demanded political or social changes in industrial societies during the nineteenth century."	Examples of evidence that are specific and relevant include the following (two examples required): - Labor rights movements, such as unions, proposing to limit working hours and increase wages - The growth of various urban problems such as pollution, overcrowding, disease, crime - Responses to urban problems such as policing, fire departments, health codes, public education - The British government extending suffrage to all males in 1867 - The role of labor unions, socialists, anarchists, communists, and feminists in the Paris Commune of 1871 - The establishment of a social security system in Prussia under Otto von Bismarck - The passage of child labor reform laws in Great Britain during the early nineteenth century - Socialists and labor unions demanding the enactment of minimum wage and eight-hour workday Laws Example of a statement that earns one point for evidence: "The Chartist movement emerged in Great Britain largely from the frustration that many working class people felt about poor working conditions in factories and the unwillingness of the owners and the government to address these problems."	Examples that successfully support an argument with evidence: "During the nineteenth century, most governments of industrial societies successfully resisted adopting most of the demands of political and social reform movements. For example, the British government adopted very few of the Chartist demands, such as annual elections for Parliament, and minimum wage and eight-hour workday laws were only enacted in the twentieth century in most industrialized states." (Uses evidence to support an argument that governments resisted reform) "Women's suffragists were a force for change as they argued for greater political rights in part because of their increased economic importance in industrial factories. While suffrage was not immediately achieved, through years of effort, women did receive additional rights, eventually including the right to vote, representing both a significant political and social change." (Uses evidence to support an argument that reforms were successful in achieving social and political change)
Additional Notes: - Typically, statements credited as evidence will be more specific than statements credited as contextualization. - If a response has a multipart argument, then it can meet the threshold of two pieces of evidence by giving one example for one part of the argument and another example for a different part of the argument, but the total number of examples must still be at least two. (For example, labor abuses in industrial factories encouraged some women to become more involved in political reform movements; industrialization provided some women with more economic power in their households, which encouraged some to advocate for greater political rights.)

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row D Analysis and Reasoning (0-2 points)	0 points Does not meet the criteria for one point.	1 point Uses historical reasoning (e.g. comparison, causation, continuity and change) to frame or structure an argument that addresses the prompt.	2 points Demonstrates a complex understanding of the historical development that is the focus of the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence.
	Decision Rules and Scoring Notes
	Responses that do not earn points: - May include evidence but offer no reasoning to connect the evidence to an argument. - May assert the use of historical reasoning but does not use it to frame or structure an argument.	Responses that earn 1 point: Must demonstrate the use of historical reasoning to frame or structure an argument, that explains how reform movements brought about political or social change in industrial society in the nineteenth century. The reasoning might be uneven or imbalanced, or the evidence may be overly general or lacking specificity.	Responses that earn 2 points: May demonstrate a complex understanding through sophisticated argumentation that is relevant to the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as: - Explaining multiple themes or perspectives to explore complexity or nuance; OR - Explaining multiple causes or effects, multiple similarities or differences, or multiple continuities or changes; OR - Explaining both cause and effect, both similarity and difference, or both continuity and change; OR - Explaining relevant and insightful connections within and across periods or geographical areas. These connections should clearly relate to an argument that responds to the prompt. May demonstrate a complex understanding through effective use of evidence relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways that might include: - Explaining how multiple pieces of specific and relevant evidence (at least four) support a nuanced or complex argument that responds to the prompt; OR - Using evidence effectively to demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives relevant to the prompt.

continued on next page

Reporting Category	Scoring Criteria
Row D (continued)	Examples that do not earn points: Provide evidence but offer no reasoning to connect the evidence to an argument "Various groups in different parts of the world in this time called for reform. They wanted rights and better hours and working conditions."	Using a historical reasoning process to frame or structure an argument could include: - Explaining how the changes to economic production that industrialization introduced led to reform movements - Explaining how the political demands of reform movements contributed to the expansion of suffrage in some European states - Comparing how different or similar factors led to the success or failure of reform movements in different industrial societies Example of acceptable use of historical reasoning: "Widespread reform movements, many of which began in Britain and were later experienced in other areas of the world, were effective enough that they sparked additional reform movements and eventual action on the part of the government to result in a number of improvements in workdays, conditions, and protections for laborers." (Indicates change as result of the reform movements.)	Demonstrating complex understanding might include any of the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided: - Explaining that nineteenth-century reform movements sometimes struggled to bring about political change in industrial societies because their membership frequently consisted of numerous factions that had competing objectives and advocated for different methods of protest. (Explains nuance) - Claiming that reform movements were successful in bringing about social or political changes in nineteenth-century industrial societies but acknowledging that many of the reforms that were implemented did not go nearly as far as the reform movements wanted. (Explains nuance) - Illustrating that some social or political reforms in industrial societies during the nineteenth century were enacted partly because they had gained support from centrist politicians and even laissez-faire economists, such as John Stuart Mill, who despite considerable political differences were willing to work together to bring about reform. (Using evidence to demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives relevant to the prompt) - Demonstrating how one factor, such as the growth of labor unions, led to the adoption of labor reform laws in different places for different reasons and includes a discussion of labor unions as both a causative factor and an effect. (Explains both cause and effect)
	Additional Notes: - To earn the first point for analysis and reasoning, the response must use historical reasoning to structure a response to the prompt, although the reasoning might be uneven or imbalanced, or the evidence may be overly general or lacking in specificity. - This complex understanding must be part of the argument and may be demonstrated in any part of the response. - While it is not necessary for this complex understanding to be woven throughout the response, it must be more than merely a phrase or reference.		